What Would Great-grandma Say?

Your great-grandmother would have one surprise after another if she visited one of our large stores to-day and saw the many things now ready made which she had to toil over at home for hours and hours. The new comforts would surely interest her. To think that you can now get one ready-made that is far warmer and lighter than the best she ever made at home is really remarkable. But such is the case, and these comforts are shown right here in our own town. They are called the Maish Laminated Cotton Down Comforts, and can be seen in all sizes and patterns at Perry's.

The Hibernians' fair was well patronized last evening, the hall being filled with people. Leroy Kenneth in escape acts gave the entertainment of the evening. Kenneth was handcuffed and leg-ironed in all possible ways, and with all kinds of irons by Policeman Carle, and about as fast as the officer could put the irons onto him, he would take them off. He was put into a straight jacket and made an almost instantaneous escape. Martin Ribbe wanted a whole lot of good nails fastening him into a packing case which was also bound with strap iron. The case was put under a canopy and in less time than it took to nail him in, Kenneth was out and the case apparently in the same condition. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.
